

July 31, 2015: Theme Party People's Richard Skillman was invited to join Bond professionals from around the world high atop the Swiss Alps to formally open the "007 Walk of Fame" at Schilthorn's Piz Gloria restaurant and museum. Honoring the 1969 James Bond classic film, "On Her Majesty's Secret Service", the Walk of Fame organizers brought 007 star George Lazenby, Bond director John Glen along with Bond girls, villains and stunt men to the VIP soirée via helicopter, complete with machine guns and an aerial stunt show. The Walk will feature the hand-prints of the major performers and crew from "OHMSS" and will serve to compliment the Bond World interactive museum which opened previously. Blofeld henchman Terrance Mountain entertained the fans with behind the scenes sto ries and the Bond girls and stunts included

- Sylvana Henriques (The Jamaican Girl)
- Catherina von Schell (Nancy)
- Jenny Hanley (The Irish Girl)
- Stunt double Vic Armstrong (has doubled for all Bond actors with the exception of Daniel Craig)
- Wendy Leech (Stunt Double)

Quoting Schilthorn executive, Christoph Egger “James Bond 007 fascinates and inspires people worldwide,” says Schilthorn Cableway chief executive Christoph Egger. “On the one hand, people are fascinated by the Bond actors and the classic characters such as the Bond Girls and Miss Money Penny,” says Egger. “On the other hand, we shouldn’t forget the many other contributors to the movie, who often have exciting background stories to tell.”
